

Westwood not impressed with 'Sex and the City'

Legendary fashion designer Vivienne Westwood did not like the fashion fare in the 'Sex and the City' movie.

The 67-year-old designer, who created a dress that was worn by Sarah Jessica Parker's character in the film, is not impressed with stylist Patricia Field's work in the movie, perezhilton.com reports.

She said: 'I thought 'Sex and the City' was supposed to be about cutting edge fashion and there was nothing remotely memorable or interesting about what I saw. I went to the premiere and left after 10 minutes.'
