

Keira Knightley wary of fans now

British actress Keira Knightley is getting more wary of fans and says she avoids interacting with them too much.

Knightley ignored eager fans at the premiere of her new movie 'The Duchess' and left to be in a private room. A female fan approached her recently and she asked the minder to take her some place 'quieter', the mirror.co.uk reports.

She, however, said that she had a good reason to be wary.

'The other day a guy jumped out in the street and went, 'Keira Knightley!' I got such a shock, I couldn't say anything. He took incredible offence and hurled the most amazing abuse,' the actress said.
