

Now enjoy menswear designers at London Fashion Week

London Fashion Week (LFW), that is exclusively dominated by womenswear collection, will showcase 13 promising menswear designers on the runway during the autumn-winter collection 2009.

The British Fashion Council (BFC) made this announcement to promote men's fashion wear and the emerging talent.

'There are exciting emerging and established menswear designers in the UK. We are delighted to have the LFW exclusively for them that will highlight and profile some of these talents,' vogue.co.uk reported chief executive of BFC Hilary Riva as saying.

London Fashion week is scheduled from Feb 20-25. On the last day, men designers will showcase their collections.

Designers James Long, Christopher Shannon, JW Anderson, Carolyn Massey, Jaden James, Kate Eary, Martine Rose, Tim Soar and a few more will showcase their collections on the ramp.
