

Aniston pays film crew to take day off

Hollywood star Jennifer Aniston made sure that the crew of her new movie 'The Bounty' had fun on the July 4 Independence Day weekend by paying them to have a day off.

The 40-year-old actress opted to shut down the movie a day early on July 2 so that staff on the set could start their weekend celebrations early. She also paid everyone's wages for a day, reported contactmusic.com.

'How many people in this world would pay for an entire movie set to have the day off...? We're talking big bucks,' said a crew member.
