

Raje markets Rajasthan in US

Rajasthan Chief Minister Vasundhara Raje, who is on a tour to the US, has urged the non-resident Rajasthanis to come and invest in the state, saying 'it's time investors took maximum advantage of the opportunities that Rajasthan offers'.

Raje met office bearers and members of the Rajasthani Association of North America (RANA) in New York, a statement issued by state government said here Friday.

Raje reached the US May 14, the day she received the United Nations Women Together Award for this year. She is slated to fly back to Rajasthan May 20.

The chief minister detailed the policy framework focusing on hotel and bio-fuel and the policies to promote private investment in power generation and creating health care infrastructure.

Raje invited members of RANA to participate in the 'resurgent Rajasthan' programme, due to start shortly. She pointed out that in a recent World Bank report,
