

Jaipur jewellery house dazzles Hollywood

They've lent sparkle to Jennifer Lopez and the Hollywood film 'Troy', and now ornaments by Jaipur-based jewellery house Amrapali are making heads turn at red carpet events in the West.

Oscar winner Halle Berry created quite a stir at the BFI London Film Festival in October when she attended the screening of 'Things We Lost in the Fire' with gold hoops, earrings and bangles from India.

Television star Sarah Michelle Geller wore Amrapali earrings and bracelets to the Lucky Magazine's 4th Annual Lucky Shops event. On Nov 2, Geller was again seen flaunting stackable Amrapali diamond bracelets at the premiere of 'Southland Tales'.

Amrapali had already made its mark in the international arena through its jewellery designs for films like 'Troy' (2004) and 'Valley of Flowers' (2006).

It is the era of East-meets-West and as sultry sirens take the jewellery route to Indian fashion, flashing
